1 • WHICH WAY IT LEANS

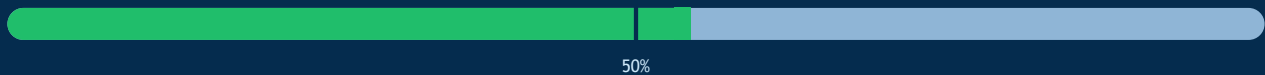

Hommie leans toward San Diego

SD

54.3%

CIN

45.7%

2 • HOW CLEAR THE READ IS

Medium clarity

There is an edge, with details worth checking.

The percentages compare each team's evidence.

They don't say who will win.

THE COACH'S READ

I see San Diego with the advantage here. Its bullpen, recent form, and series context point in the same direction; this remains a reasoned preference, not a certainty.

STATUS

Official lineups confirmed.

3 • WHY

The read, explained clearly

San Diego arrives with a clear bullpen performance advantage over Cincinnati.

Recent form favors San Diego and does not conflict with its full-season level.

The starting pitcher and series context add support without creating a strong conflict.

WATCH OUT FOR THIS

The handedness matchup slightly favors Cincinnati and keeps this read from moving to a stronger level.

HOMMIE TRANSPARENCY

Official lineups confirmed. This read expresses a reasoned preference and may change if new information appears before the game. The percentages compare each team's evidence; they don't say who will win.

4 • RUNS ANALYSIS • EXPERIMENTAL

Runs analysis

Hommie estimates how many runs the game could have with a separate analysis. It does not pick a winner and does not change which way the read leans.

WHAT HOMMIE EXPECTS

9.0

RUNS

HIGH

versus 8.5

Hommie expects a 9.0-run game

A normal range would be 5 to 12 runs

SEPARATE FROM THE WINNER READ

It does not change which way Hommie leans.

The 8.5 reference is a fixed internal number used to read High or Low.

EXPERIMENTAL • NOT CALIBRATED

This part is not calibrated yet

Experimental: this part is not calibrated yet. It is separate from the winner read and does not change it. It may change if new information appears before the game.

THE FACTORS HOMMIE CHECKS

10 Hommie factors

Each factor shows which way it points, without numbers. They are listed alphabetically.

Bullpen	Favors SD	Lineup / Injuries	Favors SD
Matchup	Slightly favors CIN	Offense	Even
